FAIR LAWN INSTITUTE FESTIVAL. Notwithstanding there had been no public notice given of the closing exercises of Fair Lawn Institute, the attendance of pagood, and the crows last night was immense, to-may for a lengthy description. Suffice f for the present to say, that the whole affair was a complete success in all its details. The large audience room was densely packed; the stage was provided with suitable scenery, and the whole presented a scene of beauty and loyeliness we have never seen surpassed in a somewhat extended observation. Miss Bettie Morris, as Laila, captivated the audience by her sweet singing, and her graceful personation of the character assumed. Miss Nelia Whiting as the Beggar Mother, and Miss Lula Whiting as Queen of the Fairles, performed their parts perfectly. But we cannot particularize

further, where all did so well. At the close of the Operatti, Gen. T. J. Wharton made some well-timed remarks, which were well received, and repeatedly applauded. He paid a just tribute to Miss Mary Moseley. Prior to the war the presperity of the South was proverbial. The earth bountifully yieldincrease, the whole world stood ready to bid for it, and the gains of the Southern country were proportionately large. These gains were invested in negroes, and by this accession of labor the productive capacity of the country was year by year increased. Lalabor, each augmenting in turn the other, and may9w6m labor. A new outlet for Southern surplus is necessary, and as each recurring season demcient prosperity of the South is reviving, the need of some such outlet becomes more apparent. What shall that outlet be? We answer that Southern capital must henceforth seek inevening. Capt. Young goes to Baltimore to vestment in Southern securities. But to facilitate the investment of Southern capital in Southern securities a market is ne-cessary, and Augusta is beyond question that mart. It is pre-eminently a solid place. Its reputation now and before the war is without a stain. In the days of the old State banks Augusta money had the public confidence from Virginia to Texas, and in the sale of the antebellum railroad bonds of Mississippi, Tennessee and Alabama, possessed a virtual monopoly. Since the war this distinguished financial character has not been lost. As shown by the tax returns there are more than double the amount of securities held in Augusta than in have no attorney resident therein, so that any other city in Georgia, and unless New process cannot be executed upon them, and Orleans be an exception, and this is doubtful, that they severally reside and are in the The War-like Trouble brewing in Europe concerns us less, individually, than the intestine commotions to which each one of us is liable at this season of the year.
